PART B – Specification

1. The NTC

The National Transport Commission (NTC) leads national land transport reform in support of Australian governments to improve safety, productivity, environmental outcomes, and regulatory efficiency. We are a key contributor to the national reform agenda with accountability to the Infrastructure and Transport Ministers' Meeting (ITMM) and its advisory body, the Infrastructure and Transport Senior Officials' Committee (ITSOC).

The NTC's purpose is to develop, propose, monitor, maintain and review nationally consistent reforms to improve the productivity, safety, environmental impacts, and regulatory efficiency of land transport in Australia.

2. Requirement

2.A. Background

The National Rail Action Plan

The NTC is delivering the National Rail Action Plan (NRAP), alongside governments and industry, to advance interoperability across Australia's rail system by reducing differences across networks and adopting a unified approach to streamline and improve the efficiency of rail operations.

NRAP remains a National Cabinet priority, with 5 agreed priority areas:

1. Locking in critical national rail standards to drive interoperability,
2. Aligning train control and signalling technology,
3. Reducing the interoperability burden on drivers, crew and maintenance workers,
4. Streamlining rollingstock approval processes, and
5. Delivering solutions to meet future rail skills demand.

Rail standards priority area

As part of the first priority, the NTC is working with industry and governments on the development of a three-tiered National Standards Framework approach.

The three-tiered national standards framework will include mandatory, model, and local standards.

Tier 1 will include mandatory interoperability standards.

Tier 2 will include harmonised standards, rules and ways of working.

Tier 3 will allow for localised standards that do not impact the National Network for Interoperability (NNI)¹.

The first Tier 1 mandatory interoperability standards will focus on:

- digital train technology,
- a single on-board interface for drivers and crew, and
- streamlining rolling stock approvals.

The NTC is seeking to explore what is required to drive optimal interoperability.

Current work on ETCS implementation

The NTC is currently assessing a European Train Control System (ETCS) technology pathway for Australia across the NNI. As part of this process a Strategic Business Case (SBC) is being progressed to provide policy direction, supported by a cost and benefit sharing framework.

Standards will need to be developed to ensure the interoperability of an ETCS implementation pathway.

Multiple jurisdictions in Australia, particularly on the East Coast, are currently implementing European Train Control System (ETCS) Level 2 (L2) technology on their mainline urban and suburban networks as part of a move towards in-cab signalling and comprehensive Automatic Train Protection (ATP) to improve network performance, safety and efficiency.

Realising the full benefits from implementing ETCS L2 in-cab signalling, particularly the potential for removal of lineside signals on ETCS L2-fitted corridors, there is a need for all associated trains operating on those corridors (passenger and freight) to be fitted with an ETCS system that is fully compatible with the ETCS L2 infrastructure that the trains operate on.

Where trains operate interstate on corridors in multiple jurisdictions, there is the need to ensure that the ETCS L2 implementations are compatible and interoperable, such that trains can operate at the highest level of safety and productive performance the network offers.

Currently there are no standards in place in Australia to define the system requirements or configurations to ensure that ETCS L2 implementations in Australia are interoperable.

NTC has been tasked by Ministers to develop the mandatory standards necessary to ensure this interoperability.

Interoperability will require some elements of both technical and operational interoperability to ensure that trains can operate at the highest level of safety and productive performance across the NNI. Technical operability being the specification and configuration of systems and technology and operational interoperability being the associated operating rules and procedures.

¹ For more information on the National Network for Interoperability, please refer to: <https://www.ntc.gov.au/transport-reform/national-rail-action-plan>.

2.B. Project Objectives

The NTC is seeking assistance to scope the technical requirements for two of the mandatory standards to support an ETCS implementation pathway across the NNI as follows:

1. Digital train technology – a standard for RIMs (trackside/infrastructure standard) specifying what needs to go on the network to ensure meaningful interoperability, including (but not limited to) the appropriate TSI compliance.
2. A single on-board interface for drivers and crew – a standard for rolling stock / locomotives (on-board standard) specifying the requirements for on-board train fitment, including the necessary configuration elements for the RIM areas where the train is authorised to operate.

The process should include a detailed assessment and review of technical requirements and specifications. It also needs to identify key matters for industry engagement, analysis of feedback and further scoping and configuration assessment. This should equip the NTC with a scope and pathway for the development of those two mandatory standards.

2.C. Project Scope

The NTC requires specialist technical advice and services support to:

1. Prepare a document scoping out the technical requirements for the digital train technology and single on-board interface Tier 1 mandatory Standards to ensure they provide optimal interoperability for an ETCS implementation across the NNI.
2. Develop document/s that outline a proposed scope of these mandatory standards to a level that would be suitable for widespread industry consultation with suppliers, Rail Infrastructure Managers (RIMs) and Rolling Stock Operators (RSOs) to enable assessment of impacts and implications for industry.

These documents would then also subsequently provide the basis of specifications for the drafting of the standards themselves. This scope of work does not include final standards drafting.

Content areas that are expected to be included (but not necessarily be limited to) are:

- i. The ETCS and Railway Mobile Radio (RMR) baselines. For example, ETCS Baseline 3 release 2 and RMR GSM-R baseline 1 are currently being deployed on projects in Australia, but later baselines may be proposed for future projects, including potentially a mobile radio technology solution other than GSM-R. The implications and requirements around standardisation of these baselines to ensure interoperability and support backwards compatibility need to be fully understood.
- ii. The hardware requirements, particularly from a trainborne perspective, needed to support the associated ETCS and RMR system baselines.
- iii. A technical assessment of the European Union Agency for Railways Technical Specifications for Interoperability (TSIs) and their applicability to the Australian NNI. The assessment is required to determine if the TSIs are appropriate to apply in the - context of Tier 1 standards in Australia, and if so, within what specific parameters noting that they will need to meet Australian legislation, regulations and rail network operating requirements.

- iv. The level of compliance needed with the Control-Command and Signalling (CCS) European Technical Specifications for Interoperability (TSI).
 - v. The level of compliance needed with TSIs other than the CCS TSI, especially where there is cross referencing between those TSIs and parts of the CCS TSI, such as with the Infrastructure TSI, Passenger & Locomotive TSI and the Operations (OPE) TSI.
 - vi. The extent to which a nationally standard approach may be needed for configuration options and parameter choices available with the TSI specifications. Examples might include National Values and Packet 44, although other configuration items and parameters within the TSIs are also likely to be applicable.

For detailed areas of configuration options and parameter choices associated with ETCS L2 implementation, it is not expected that the document(s) produced as part of this scope of work define the recommended options or choices to be made, only that the options available are discussed, along with the implications of different choices being made in different jurisdictions.

Previous related work undertaken by the NTC as part of the National Rail Action Plan will be made available to support this engagement.

The document(s) should include an outline of the technical considerations and identify key matters to be explored as part of industry consultation.

The consultant should work with the NTC to prepare materials for engagement with rail suppliers and operators on specification and configuration choices as required by the NTC.

2.D. Project Deliverables

In accordance with the project objectives and scope outlined above, the consultant must deliver the following:

1. Technical Assessment: A report (or reports) outlining the technical implications and considerations of implementing mandatory standards across digital train technology and a single onboard interface for drivers and crew for an ETCS implementation pathway across the NNI. The report(s) should review the TSIs and the implications of their potential adaption and adoption for the Australian NNI.
2. Input to Industry Engagement: Key matters to be explored with industry. This will include preparation of presentations for consultation with suppliers, RIMs and RSOs outlining the proposed scope of mandatory standards for ETCS interoperability in Australia.
3. Post Engagement Assessment: Assist and advise the NTC in the review, assessment and consolidation of industry feedback to provide the basis for the specifications and configuration requirements for the drafting of the mandatory standards.

4. Technical Advice – Ongoing: Technical advice as requested by the NTC in relation to areas that would need mandatory standardisation to achieve interoperability. The details of each task under this deliverable will be agreed with the NTC Project Manager in writing as required from time to time, prior to any work commencing. The consultant will be reimbursed for time and effort against each task on an hourly/daily rate basis and up to an upper limiting fee cap for the duration of this project.

2.E. Delivery schedule

All project work must be completed by 30/06/2025.

The indicative milestones outlined below will be confirmed with the successful proponent.

Milestone	Indicative due date
1) Technical assessment	Six weeks from commencement of the contract (not later than 14 March 2025)
2) Input to industry engagement	Same date as above
3) Post engagement assessment	Within 2 weeks of industry engagement closing
